NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY IS RECRUITING FOR THEIR PHD. PROGRAM

The Department of Earth and Planetary Sciences at Northwestern is seeking graduate applicants for the incoming class of Fall 2015. Due to an unusually large number of PhD. graduates in the 2014 calendar year, and the addition of new graduate student funding opportunities (e.g., the H. Grant Goodell Fellowship in Sedimentary Geology), they are eager to recruit a robust class of excellent new PhD. students. If prospective students plan to attend AGU, visit their recruiting booth. If not, check their website for details on faculty research interests and current projects.

Lastly, feel free to contact Brad Sageman (brad@earth.northwestern.edu) or Trish Beddows (patricia@earth.northwestern.edu) if you have any questions about their graduate program.

You are cordially invited to attend

Software Patents in the U.S. --- What you need to know

The standards for software patentability, including the machine-transformation test, have evolved over the years. This presentation is tailored to inventors, investors and users with interest in software technologies, patents, and copyrights. The sequence of Supreme Court decisions including the most recent decisions (e.g. Alice Corporation vs. CLS Bank; 2014) on software-related intellectual property will be reviewed, emphasizing their implications on patenting decisions. Ways to maximize your chances of obtaining a software patent, in light of the recent judicial outcomes will be discussed. Learnings from this seminar will be useful in architecting your software patents to meet the new requirements and guidelines issued by the United States Patent and Trademark Office.
