RECORD DAY FOR EAPS DURING PURDUE'S FOURTH ANNUAL DAY OF GIVING

The Department of Earth, Atmospheric, and Planetary Sciences is thrilled to announce that we received three deferred gifts yesterday totaling $800,000.

There were two generous anonymous contributions:

- One anonymous contribution was for $500,000 and will be directed toward faculty support.
- Another gift was for $200,000 and will be directed towards student support including scholarships, as well as assisting with the funding of field camp experiences and research.

In addition, Kelly Waymire, a 1980 alumnus of the Earth Sciences program, made a deferred gift of $100,000. Her gift will be allocated toward undergraduate and graduate support that will impact a number of different areas for our students in the future.

We cannot thank our alumni, faculty, staff, and friends enough for their support in making this such a special day during the year of our Black and Golden Jubilee Celebration.

A grand total of gifts for the department during the Day of Giving will be announced soon!

Sampa Das received the Teaching Academy Graduate Award, which honors graduate students with teaching responsibilities for their dedication to undergraduate students and outstanding teaching contributions. Das is a PhD student studying Atmospheric Science.

Cassidy Jay received the Graduate Teacher Certificate. The certificate, awarded by the CIE, provides a framework for the development, coordination, evaluation, and recognition of efforts to enhance students' teaching capabilities. Jay is a PhD student studying Geology.

A full list of recipients can be found on the CIE website.

CALLING ALL GRADUATE STUDENTS STUDYING CLIMATE:

Graduate students in MIT's Program in Atmospheres, Oceans and Climate and the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution are pleased to announce the 11th Graduate Climate Conference! GCC11 is scheduled for November 10-12, 2017 at the Marine Biological Laboratory on the south shores of Cape Cod, MA. This is a unique conference for grad students, organized and run by grad students.

This year's conference is focused on bringing together graduate researchers who think about climate from all disciplines, including but not limited to atmospheric, biological, earth, and ocean sciences, geography, anthropology, public policy, and economics. The conference is unique because only students attend, providing a rare opportunity for the next generation of climate researchers to interact without the inhibitions that accompany the presence of faculty and senior scientists.

Applications will open by the end of April and the deadline for abstract submission will be in June. Food, lodging, and conference registration fees are provided by our generous sponsors; travel grants will be provided on an as-needed basis to as many participants as possible.

For more information, and a link to the application page, visit the official website: <http://gradclimateconf.mit.edu>. Feel free to contact the organizing committee with questions at gcc-2017@mit.edu.
